LONDON, Nov 4—The Morning Velov in a leader devoted to the American politic of contest says. Republicans have much in their favor. They are in power. They have governed the resublic for 25 year. They settled the slavery question for ever and they have the most herois recollections in botherm and weatern states associated with their name. But the republican party has done its work, and fallen into view which long ascendancy produces in all political parties. It has had a candidate in Blaine who comes forward as the representative of the party machine. Democratic victory is longer means the return of southern men to the monopoly of power. Old sectional jealousies are cod beyond the lower of warning to new life. The success of C eveland will re-open no closed controverses, and it will simply mean a change in the man at the belim. Gld issues between republicans and lemocrats have lost their force. New issues are along typically them. The bear many indications that the important turning point in domestic politics of the union have been eached.

ing point in domestic politics of the union nave been reached. The Telegrach likewise finds subject for comment in the American election. It greatly rejoice that wherein is successful no cloud in the horizon threaten to overshadow the existing amity of America and England, and Englandmen can afford to await result with entire considere. Whether Blame or Cleveland is elected there is no dissolution of continuity of harmony and good will happily subsisting between threat Britain and her majosty's eldest daughter.

about Moses As she uttered his name she looked up and remarked to the a dience. "I have always thought that when I passed to the Beyond, the person whom I sould most wish to see—of course after the nembers of my own family—was Moses." With a smile, Mr. Liton, who was sitting at the lack of the stage, whispered 'Virs Stanton, when you go to beaven do you wish to see Moses." 'No, 'said she, "I would rather see Lots when I was on this same occasion that after a session a fashionable lady of Newport expressed to Mrs. Stanton a fear that it was not quite modest for a woman to speak in public. Our bandsome and dignified president looked at her with mid styrprise, "Why," she said, "there are not so many people at our convention as there were at the ball last night, and surely it is more modest to make a sensible speech in quet costums than to exhibit one's bare arms and shoulders at a public dance in the embrace of a strange gentleman.' The lady, whose own dress had been remarkably decollette, had nothing but a blush for repl.

Onc after a speech before the state legislature a Ldy had the importanence to ask Mrs. Stanton i "it takes me no longer to come here to speak I an it takes you to rame here to listen what it, we you done with your children during the two hours you have been sitting here." Stanton and her col'thorers. The judge made several speeches against the hills, doctaring that if wices were permitted a separate estate from their lundar's twould cause dissensions in families. The hills were passed despite the eloquent advocate's op; osition. A few months later Mrs. Stanton met the judge in New York. She held out her had with a mouraful expression of face, though, I doubt not, there was a twinkle of fin in her mild blue opes. "Permit me to condols with you," she said "Condols with me, exclaimed the judge, "on what " "tin the great unhappiness in your family—this unfortunate differences between your wife and yourse!" How windl seem these petty differences in looking over a long life's achievements. As her years are drawing towards the allotted three score and ton, Mrs. Stanton sees the reform sho has in an quarted gaining in power every day and people a ready admitting that its final success is only a question of time. She has sometimes and writily that she does not want to enter the king-ion of heaven distranchised, and as she is still in the enjoyment of health and vigor, we may rescanably hope that this great woman mry live 's see the crowning of her late work with victory.

DISTART OBJECTS AT SEA. Frof Lichard Proctor in Newerstle Chronicle
It is aimusing to note how ignorant many ordinary seamen and nearly all sea travelers are of such malters as the distance of the sea horiz the way in which a ship's place at sea is detor-mined, and other such matters—which all sea-men megat be expected to understand, and most people of decent education might be expected to have learned something about at school. Ask a salle b w far off a ship may be, which is hall down, as i he will give you an opinion based entirely on his knowledge of the ship's probable size, and in the distinctness with which he sees her. This opinion is often pretty near the truth, but it may be preposterously wrong if his idea of the sir ye real naze is very incorrect and is sometimes quite wrong eyen when he knows her size somewhat accurately

Any notion that the distance may be very precisely inferred from the relative position of the hull and the horizon line seems not to enter the across the Atlantic we had several curious ilnverage sulor's head. During my last journey across the Atlantic we had several curfous illustrations of this. For instance, on one occusion, a steamer was passing at such a distance as o be nearly hull down. From her character it was known that the portion of her hull concealed was about twelve feet in height, while it was equally well known that the eye of an observer standing on the saloon passenger's deck on the city of Rome was about thirty feet above the water level. A sailor, asked (by way of experiment) how far off the steamer was, answerse, "Six or seven miles." "But she is enarly hull down," some one said to him. "I didn't say she warn't, as I knows on, was the quaint be a generally known fact, that even as seen from the 'eck of one of the ordinary Atlantic stenners, the horizon is fully six miles away, the high! If the eye being about eighteen or twenty feet, and that for the concealed portion of the off it ship's hull a distance of four or five nulses in a must be allowed; so that the man's mistuke was a gross one. And several other cases of a similar kind occurred during my seven days' posince from Queenstown to New York.
